

THE "HAPPY HOUR" ABOARD SHIP MAKES U. S. TARS CONTENTED

Feminineless Tango on the Battleship Arkansas.

The "Happy Hour" on board the U. S. S. Arkansas is setting a record for contentment of the crew in the Atlantic fleet now in the harbor.

The happy hour is really several hours set apart three nights a week for the entertainment of the crew, both officers and men, while the ship is at sea.

The entertainment consists of moving pictures, boxing bouts, chorus singing of popular songs, and dramatics from vaudeville to tragedy and the tango.

The boxing bouts are the equal of any of the professional bouts seen in city clubs. No decisions are given, but the men show class and good nature at the end of the bouts.

The admiral and other ship officers have ringide seats while the crew perches on turrets, masts and boats and cheer their favorites.

When the ship's band plays rag-
